

UP MARKET

Cultivate our local artists and strengthen our local economy!

Who Are We?

We are a creative group of local artists who originally started selling our work together in 2013 in Upham's Corner, Dorchester. We nurture artisans and craftspeople throughout the city by providing physical places for artists to sell their work together at theaters, festivals, and community events, and by forming partnerships with major organizations and arts institutions to increase business opportunities for participating artists. The Up Market is committed to bringing handmade products to local markets, including fine art/illustration, glass art, jewelry, knit wear, leather accessories, natural skin care, ceramics, photography, textile design, and so much more.

Why Buy From Up Market?

We offer products made by local artists that are high quality, one-of-a-kind, and hand crafted. Whether it is a beautiful hand knit scarf, hand blown glass, or an original illustration from an up-and-coming artist, we represent local innovation at its best. Buying from Up Market vendors supports local craftspeople and keeps your dollars in your own community.

Why Does Up Market Matter?

Upham's Corner is a historically multicultural neighborhood that exemplifies the diverse tapestry that makes Boston so special. Connect with fellow local artists and thrive with a growing local market that supports and appreciates quality products sourced from the surrounding area.

How Do Local Artists Benefit?

- Up Market provides a platform to showcase and sell handcrafted high-quality original work.
- Up Market helps build a creative economy that supports local artists.
- Up Market extends our community to pop-up venues throughout greater Boston.
- Up Market keeps our Boston rental fees reasonable so that artists get to enjoy the fruits of their labor.

How Does the Public Benefit?

Up Market partners with illustrious art institutions such as The Strand Theatre, Jose Mateo Ballet, the Boston Ballet, Company One Theatre and Arts Emerson, so for the price of a ticket they've already purchased, attendees get to shop for one-of-a kind gifts before and after performances. In addition to our partnerships, Up Market creates creative commerce opportunities for local artists and small business owners in the community, creating economic growth within our community.
